[Sustainable Development] - DuPont™ SORONA® fiber is derived from plant raw materials that can be grown repeatedly every year, and the core PDO is derived from plant starch glucose, not petroleum. Compared with nylon, the SORONA fiber manufacturing process reduces the consumption of petroleum resources by 37%, saves energy use by 30%, and reduces greenhouse gas emissions by 63%. It is the only bio-based elastic staple fiber produced on a large scale in the world. Its contribution to ecology and environmental protection is a strong support for the sustainable development of the textile industry, leaving a huge creative space for the development of textile products, and it is a revolutionary innovation in the textile industry.

[Structure] - The natural three-dimensional structure and spherical structure endow the bio-fleece with excellent bulkiness, pressure resistance, elastic recovery and skin-friendly and soft hand feeling. The quilt and clothes filled with soft elastic silk preserve more still air, reduce the heat loss of the human body, and at the same time, it does not affect the moisture permeability, so that the human body can maintain a warm, dry and comfortable feeling.

[Characteristics] - Environmental protection and health, excellent warmth, washable and sun-dried, skin-friendly, breathable, not easy to deform, freely stretchable, convenient and flexible to use.
